

Bloodlust: A Psychological Thriller

A dark, grotesque face stares at him through the chains. Only the mouth is visible. Do you remember me? the face says. Tucker doesn't move. The dark form pushes against the chain-link door; it's unlocked. The chain-links scrape against the cement as the door squeals open. The dark form moves onto the basketball court. Wh-who are you? Tucker says. But he knows. The flood lights disperse the shadows from the man's face as he moves closer. Do you remember me? How? Tucker whispers. You shot me. Nono. Is that what stupid boys like you do? Shoot people? Alex shoves Tucker, hard, knocking him down onto the cold cement. Tucker crawls backward on his palms, trying to crabwalk away. Alex reaches down, grabs a fistful of Tucker's shirt, and pulls him back to his feet. Do you know how much you've f*cked up my life? Tucker whimpers. Why would you do that to me, huh? Just cause I told you to turn down your sh*tty music? Tucker, hyperventilating: I don't know. You don't know? Is that it? YOU DON'T KNOW! Please, just leave me alone, Tucker cries. Please, please. I'm sorry. I'm sorry. Alex shoves Tucker against the brick wall of the school building. The jagged edges cut and scrape the flesh on Tucker's back. Please, Tucker cries. I don't want to die. You should have thought of that before you tried to kill me. ---- In this dark, psychological thriller, a head injury transforms a brain surgeon into a serial killer. When a thug shoots brain surgeon Alex Dien in the head, he slips into a coma and awakens a blood-thirsty monster. Voices whisper in his ear, prompting him to stab, drown, and strangle. Soon, the bodies pile up and the FBI gets involved. In the end, Alex must choose to listen to the voices in his head, or save his wife and daughter--from himself.
