

The Most Dangerous Game with a Bow: Secrets of the PSE Pros

Can you face a wild animal with the ability to eat, maul or trample you, with only a bow and arrow in your hand? When you stare death in the face at less than 30 yards, can you control your fear and the adrenaline rush that hits you, and do you have enough confidence in your shooting skills and your bows ability to perform the task before it? If you have, then youve experienced what very-few people on Gods earth have the opportunity to do and survive. From where does courage come? How does a person obtain courage? What can courage do for you? Each time you face a fear, a dangerous situation or a life-and-death experience, and you push through the fear and the emotion of the moment, you dip up a deep cup of courage and pour it into your being. The more courage you obtain, and the more fear you face, the happier you can be. My definition of happiness is the absence of fear. The hunters we write about in this book are some of the happiest people I know. Most enjoy the hunt for dangerous game far more than they enjoy the actual shots they take. Hunting dangerous game with bows and arrows gives an individual an opportunity to step back to a time when survival depended on the accuracy and courage of the men and women who went afield with bows and arrows. In this book, youll meet some amazing bowhunters whove had dreams of hunting dangerous game and have realized those dreams. Most of these hunters have made many-more than one dangerous-game hunt. If youve always dreamed of standing at full draw with a 1,000-pound Cape buffalo looking you in the eyes about to charge, youve wondered how you will respond when close to a bull elephant that easily can turn you into a sausage patty, or youre less-than 30 yards from a brown bear that can take down and kill a moose weighing more than 800 pounds, then I believe youll really enjoy this book. If youve always had a dream of making a dangerous-game hunt, this book will let you read about the men who've lived your dream and know how to fulfill your dreams.
