

The Wind Sculpture

Proceeds raised from this eBook will go to the Mother Emanuel Hope Fund in Charleston, South Carolina to help the families of those slain at the Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church. It is the hottest day in the summer of 1965 in Jackson, Mississippi. The March on Washington and the words of Martin Luther King JR ring loud and clear in the town, yet crowds have congregated around the town square with only hatred on their minds. They are determined to remove a 12 year old black boy who sits at the foot of the town monument, a stone sculpture he is determined to paint. A sculpture began by his father who perished at the hands of the KKK weeks earlier. In this short story, on this hot, sweltering afternoon, hatred and prejudice will attempt to deny the love of a son to honour the memory of his father, but this 12 year old has only one purpose-to remain where he sits to finish the work. Darkness cannot drive out darkness: only light can do that. Hate cannot drive out hate: only love can do that. ? Martin Luther King Jr., A Testament of Hope: The Essential Writings and Speeches. Written for Martin Luther King Day 2014.
