

A letter from a gentleman in New-York, to his friend in London

I Received Your Letter by the way of Boston; You tell me you have seen the Votes of our Assembly, and their generous Resolution of giving the Governour a Thousand Pounds for his extraordinary Services: Had all the Votes been Published as they were Voted (which of right they ought to have been) you would have also seen, that they Resolved to give him but Seven Hundred and Fifty Pounds, and I am ashamed to tell you how they came to add the other Two Hundred and Fifty. This is an edition of a classical book first published in the eighteenth century.
