

The Cryin Heart - Poems From The Edge

This collection of poetry was inspired by life events that left me wounded, lost and fighting to find myself. Written from my late teens and into my early twenties these poems were taken from some of my earliest work. After a series of heart breaks, loss and the death of a close friend, this was a way of expressing my emotions, releasing my anger and justifying the tears that wouldn't stop. All of my poetry is written directly from the soul and were all composed after personal life events. My first poem came after I lay in my bed at age 15 with a pen and a piece of paper. I was desperate for a way to bring closure to a painful event in my life. I opened my heart and closed my mind and the pain seemed to melt away as the words poured onto the pages. This became my way of healing emotional wounds. Originally a way to release my inner most feelings, eventually poetry evolved to become my passion.
